

The Voyage of the Beagle

After having been twice driven back by heavy southwestern gales, Her Majesty's ship Beagle sailed from Devonport on the twenty-seventh of December. The object of the expedition was to complete the survey of Patagonia and Tierra del Fuego. It was a remarkable journey by any measure.

The weather was fine and the sea was calm for many days. Charles Darwin recorded his observations with great care. Every island offered new species to catalogue and describe. The finches of the archipelago would later become famous in scientific history.
